

Twelve gigabytes of the engine room. On a phone.

A crew member's camera roll. Before the refit. Before the controller was replaced.

The most accurate visual record of the vessel.

Unstructured. Personal. Dated only by the file system.

And the only one the next chief will never see.

It rotated off with the crew member who shot it.

The vessel does not own its picture.
The departing crew did.
